

The Hannah Group

a support group for those struggling with infertility

Are you dealing with infertility and...

Feeling isolated and alone in your pain and disappointment?

Tired of the medical tests and interventions?

Stressed out by the elusiveness of the dream of pregnancy?

Angry at your body because of its noncooperation?

Perplexed by your husband's reaction?

The Hannah Group may be for you

In The Hannah Group, you will find a safe group support experience with women who can provide a listening ear, understanding, and personal information about the challenges of infertility. The group is for you and other women who are looking for the answers to similar questions. The group is led by a caring and knowledgeable facilitator who helps to guide the group discussion.

Purpose of the group

Discuss issues surrounding the emotional impact of infertility and its treatment; share personal experiences; increase mindfulness of the other aspects of life and identity that get lost in the quest for a baby; and decrease the isolation participants may feel.
